Introduction

The transaction approval process (TAP) lets your organization use Access Online to approve and audit transactions using your existing internal approval hierarchy and procedures. By using the TAP function, you can eliminate paper approvals and easily approve transactions and view approval history. The TAP function's flexibility also enables you to mirror your own internal auditing procedures, from simple to complex.

Two basic users will use the TAP function:

- Cardholders—Cardholders will use TAP to approve and forward transactions to an approval manager.
- Approval managers—Approval managers will use TAP to review, final approve, and forward (if needed) transactions to another approval manager.

The system lets only one user modify a transaction at a given point in time. In other words, the same transaction will never be in the work queue of more than one user. This feature reduces the chance of fraud and ensures that only one person can modify a transaction at a time.

Both approval managers and cardholders can perform the following basic procedures:

- Approve transactions—Cardholders and approval managers can approve transactions and forward them to an approval manager for additional approval. Cardholders approve and forward only their own transactions, while approval managers approve and forward transactions from cardholders and other approval managers.
- Pull back transactions—Cardholders and approval managers can pull back transactions that an approval manager has not approved, rejected, or modified (e.g. reallocated) yet. Both cardholders and approval managers can pull back transactions they previously approved as long as the pending approval managers have not yet approved, rejected or modified the transactions (e.g., reallocated, added comments, changed user line items).
- Manage rejected transactions—Both cardholders and approval managers can manage transactions that approval managers reject back to them.

In addition, approval managers can:

- Reject transactions—Approval managers can reject transactions and send them back to the cardholder, previous approval manager, or to another approval manager. The rejecting approval manager must specify a rejection reason so that the cardholder or approval manager receiving the rejected transaction knows how to manage the rejected transaction.

The flow chart on the following page provides an overview of the entire process.

TAP Overview

View-Only Access

You may only be able to view transaction approval screens, without being able to perform any approval tasks. Your organization may have set you up with this view-only access so that you can see the transactions and their approval status in the system, without being able to make any changes to the information. For example, if you are an internal auditor in your organization, you might have such view-only access. The screens and tasks will display as shown in this user guide, but the action buttons for performing tasks will not be active. In this way, your Program Administrator can give you the access to the information you need, while maintaining control over who can modify the information in the system, leading to greater overall program control.

Learn More: If your organization's procedures require you to approve accounts, including cardholder and managing accounts, as well as transactions, you should refer to the Access Online: Account Approval Process user guide.

Approve Your Own Transactions

As an approval manager, you need to approve your own transactions using the procedures in this section. To manage your own transactions, you act as a cardholder. Later in this user guide, you will learn how to approve and manage the transactions that cardholders send to you for approval. To manage your own transactions, you can:

- View a list your transactions, filtered by approval status (e.g., pending, pulled back) and other parameters
- Approve and forward a transaction to an approval manager
- Pull back a transaction as long as the approval manager (also called the pending approver) has not approved, rejected, or modified the transaction (e.g., reallocated, added comments, changed user line items).
- Manage a rejected transaction if your approval manager sends it back to you
- View the approval history to see the current approval status of the transaction, along with each user who approved a transaction, the date and time of each approval, and whether or not each user modified the transaction's allocation, comments, or line items.

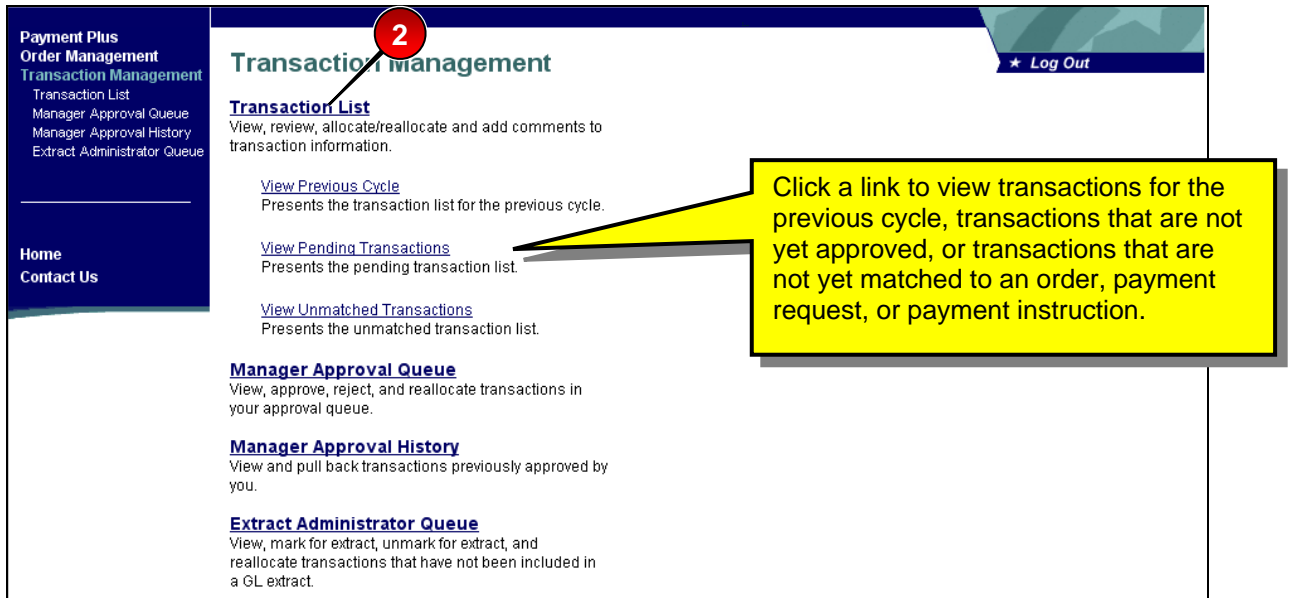

View Transactions

The first step in using the TAP function is to access a list of your transactions, as you do for other transaction management functions.

To view transactions:

1. Select the Transaction Management high-level task. The Transaction Management screen displays.

2. Click the Transaction List link. The Transaction Management: Search and Select an Account screen displays.

Tip! If you have access to only one account you will go directly to the Transaction Management: Transaction List screen after selecting the Cardholder Transaction Management link. Otherwise, you will need to select which account you want to work with.

Transaction Approval Process

Learn More: If your organization uses CSV, then you can only approve and forward transactions based on the parameters your program administrator set up. For example, you may not be able to approve or final-approve transactions with an Invalid and/or Not Validated accounting code status. Some program administrators set up their programs to allow approval of transactions with Not Validated and/or Invalid accounting codes, but do not allow final-approval of the same transactions until the accounting code is valid. In this way, cardholders and approval managers can continue to process transactions, but final approval requires a valid accounting code. Other program administrators may not allow any approval of transactions with Invalid and/or Not Validated accounting codes. However your program administrator set up the CSV function for your organization, if you attempt to save an approval not authorized by your program administrator, an error message displays, as shown in the example below.
